

It was a nice sunny afternoon with smooth breeze passing through the jungle of Kuhia.

Cunny, the little rabbit was running fast out of home when her mother asked "Where are you going Cunny?"

"Am getting late for Peepu's birthday. Let me run fast." Peepu was the prettiest bird, the peacock of Kuhia jungle.

All small birds and animals were invited for Peepu's birthday.

Cunny reached there, just in time.

He could see Sheru, the lion cub sitting and waiting for the cake to be cut.

Peepu's mother was greeting everybody coming and Peepu was smiling and dancing all over.

Once the crowd got bigger, Peepu's mother announced that before cake cutting we would have a singing competition.

Whoever gets more accolades will be the first one to share the cake with Peepu.

All got ecstatic and Chuimui, the parrot started the course.

Her song was as sweet as honey. All were mesmerised by Chuimui's song.

Kumkum, the cuckoo then started in her own sweet voice which was resonating across the jungle.

Slowly all the birds and animals who wanted to participate, sang all kinds of songs and everybody was having a nice time.

Once done Peepu's mother asked everybody to raise hands for voting the best singer.

Kumkum got the highest votes and she started jumping and came near Peepu for the cake cutting.

Finally Peepu cut the cake, with the full group singing birthday songs for her.

Then Cunny requested "Peepu, what about your dance?"

Peepu was shy at first but when the requests grew louder, Peepu started dancing with all her feathers. Everyone else also started dancing and all had a great time.

It was the best birthday party of Kuhia Jungle. Cunny returned home with a nice return gift.
