It was a bright sunny Friday. Somu was going to school when he saw a small lovely puppy lying near a tree. Somu stopped for a while. He thought if it's there in the afternoon, he will take it home while returning.

While returning from school he was elated when he saw the lovely puppy still lying there. He took it up in his hands and started carrying it home.

But when Somu reached home, he thought his mother would be angry to carry such a puppy home. So he struck upon an idea.

Somu created a nice place for the puppy at his shaded backyard. Also got some milk from house and fed the puppy. The puppy was very happy and was wagging the tail all the time. This area was less visited by Somu's mother.

He then went home and was as normal as possible. His mother couldn't guess that Somu had a puppy at the backyard.
